The Little Black Dress

The Must Have

Gabrielle Chanel is often attributed to the creation of the little black dress, and yet it is in the street that this emblematic piece of the women's wardrobe was born. And for good reason, in the 1920s, fashion is black. Dramas of the Great War, the Spanish flu: many women are mourning in an early twentieth century austere and dreary. The couturiers adapt themselves, proposing small black dresses with the cuttings sober and obsolete. The little black dress is born

Discover! SnapChat

By dint of hearing about it or seeing your little cousins spend their lives sending snaps, you've cracked. You have downloaded Snapchat on your smartphone. But by opening the application, stupor: you have found (without ever daring to say it) that you do not understand anything at all ... Do not worry, you are not alone. The application is anything but intuitive. Hard to hang when you're not a digital native. Even tech journalists tore out their hair trying to get a clearer picture. But that's not a reason to give up.

NAMIBIA : WINDHOEK

The city is the economic and geographic heart of the country, and its central position makes it a crossroad for tourists visiting the Namib desert or Estoha Park. But she herself is not devoid of charm and deserves a stop.

In the city center you can discover the Lutheran church, which is the symbol of the capital, the old German fort nearby, the equestrian statue of Curt von François, and the seat of government, as well as St. Mary's Cathedral and the old station. Also check out Independence Avenue, or see the meteorite fountain, and Alfes State Museum, and the old locomotive at its approach

TUNISIA : DJERBA THE SWEET

Its shores are dotted with forts, including Borj El Kebir, now transformed into a museum. You can also visit the Museum of Popular Arts and Traditions, the Djerba Explore, a theme park with a restored traditional Djerbian village, and attend various cultural events or festivals at different times of the year: The International Festival Djerba Ulysses, for the Music and Theater, the Guellala Pottery Festival, the Festival of World Island Music and Island Film, the Festival of Diving and Traditional Sailing, are some interesting examples
